From the Desk of Fr. Francis

Greetings of Christ's Peace and Joy! Hope you all had a blessed week.

Sunday of the Word of God

In his Apostolic Letter, titled, “APERUIT ILLIS” in 2019, Pope Francis declared that the Third Sunday in Ordinary Time is to be devoted to “the celebration, study and dissemination of the word of God.” This Sunday calls us to renew our love for the Word of God and to pray and reflect on the role of the Scripture in the life of our Church and of our own spirituality. The Word of God has power to help the Church to grow and to nourish each of us. Furthermore, after a Week of Prayer for Christian Unity and on this traditionally known as Ecumenical Sunday, Pope Francis states that “this Sunday of the Word of God will thus be a fitting part of that time of the year when we are encouraged to strengthen our bonds with the Jewish people and to pray for Christian unity. This is more than a temporal coincidence: the celebration of the Sunday of the Word of God has ecumenical value, since the Scriptures point out, for those who listen, the path to authentic and firm unity.”

St. Paul on his letter to 2 Timothy beautifully states on the power of the Word of God: “All scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, for refutation, for correction, and for training in righteousness, so that one belongs to God may be competent, equipped for every good work (3: 16-17).”

As Christians, we believe in the saving power of the Word which we hear it at Mass, we share it at our Bible Sharing Group, and we use it regularly as our favorite prayer. Pope Francis encourages all Christians to pray with the Scripture regularly by stating:

Regular reading of sacred Scripture and the celebration of the Eucharist make it possible for us to see ourselves as part of one another. As Christians, we are a single people, making our pilgrim way through history, sustained by the Lord, present in our midst, who speaks to us and nourishes us. A day devoted to the Bible should not be seen as a yearly event but rather a yearlong event, for we urgently need to grow in our knowledge and love of the Scriptures and of the risen Lord, who continues to speak his word and to break bread in the community of believers. For this reason, we need to develop a closer relationship with sacred Scripture; otherwise, our hearts will remain cold and our eyes shut, struck as we are by so many forms of blindness.

Clearly, Bible is indispensable for the life of our Church and for our relationships with God and with each other. On this Sunday, let's renew our love for the Word of God and let's make some resolutions to make Bible part of our daily living. I hope the following “ways” will be helpful to you as we celebrate the Word of God Sunday.

10 Ways to celebrate Word of God Sunday on January 24 \(aleteia.org\)

1. Celebrate a Bible Enthronement in your home or parish.
2. Go through your gift lists for this year, and consider giving the Bible as part of your Christmas, birthday or wedding gifts.
3. Make sure your grandparents or the elderly in your family have a large-print Bible or an audio Bible.
4. Resolve to read one chapter of the New Testament each day; write down what the Holy Spirit says to your heart. This will become your spiritual diary and a treasure for years to come.

5. Create a weekly Zoom or Google Meet group to read, meditate, and discuss the Sunday Gospel with family and friends.
6. Take an online free Catholic Scripture course as a way to study God's Word more systematically.
7. Look up artworks that depict passages of Scripture and discuss them with your children.
8. Find board games related to the Bible and play them as a family.
9. Make a list of your favorite Bible verses and categorize them according to the virtues of hope, faith, and charity.
10. Make a vow to make Christ the center of your life and to know, live, and transmit God's Word in everything you think, say and do.

May the Word be "a lamp for my feet, a light for my path" (Psalm 119: 105).

Peace~ Fr. Francis

Infant Baptism---Fr. John Cuff

Should babies be baptized? A key dogma of our faith that the Church has always taught is the existence of Original Sin and the necessity of Baptism, including infant baptism, for salvation. Yet many Protestant sects would object; they don't believe in infant baptism.

They say you must have faith for baptism, and obviously an infant cannot have faith, for they can't even think; so infant baptism is impossible, it's meaningless, they say.

But the Church has always taught that not only is infant baptism possible, it's necessary to free the child from original sin and the power of the devil. In fact, the Church teaches that Baptism should be given within the first few weeks after birth.

Thus the Church from earliest times has always taught with authority the doctrine of infant baptism; in fact, infant baptism is found in both scripture and tradition. In the Gospels Christ says, "Let the little children come unto me." Elsewhere, in the New Testament, for example, in the Acts of the Apostles and in 1st Corinthians, it is recorded that the Apostles baptized "whole households," and that would include infants.

Other evidence comes from tradition; archaeologists investigating catacombs where early Christians buried their dead, have discovered inscriptions on the tombs of children that read: "So and so, child of so and so, baptized on such and such a day..." Thus there is ample evidence both in scripture and tradition that the practice of infant baptism goes back to the earliest days of the Church.

Sometimes you hear it said, "I haven't baptized my child yet because I think he should grow up and have the freedom to make his own decision about baptism; it seems like a violation of the child's freedom to baptize him and put a burden on him."

The Church authoritatively rejects this view, saying: "There is no such thing as pure human freedom, immune from evil influences; even on the natural level, parents make choices for their children necessary for their future good health and well-being."

"A so-called neutral attitude on the religious level would in fact be a negative choice which would deprive their child of an essential good."

Our own St. Therese uses another image to explain the same point. She says that in the tender years of a child, his or her soul is actually like warm wax; if Christ is not impressed on the soul at that early stage, then it's quite probable that evil will be.

In other words the Church says that you do not put a burden on your child when you introduce him to the one true God; the greatest gift parents can give their child after physical life is eternal life; how can anyone say that is doing a disservice to him?

Pope John Paul explained this point when he said, "It is a mistake for parents to delay infant baptism, thinking that children should desire baptism before receiving it; if the parents do so, they misunderstand the role and meaning of Baptism." "Christian life begins not simply with a human desire, but with a sacrament whose divine power acts on the soul."

In other words, as long as faith is present, it's the power of the sacrament of Baptism itself, which cleanses one of all sin and makes one a child of God and heir of heaven.

This brings us back to the first point about infant baptism: actually Protestants are right when they say where there is no faith, there is no baptism.

But the Church teaches that indeed there is faith present, not the infant's faith of course, for he or she can't even think, but the faith of the parents and godparents.

At infant baptism, the child is baptized in the faith of the parents; the parents as it were "loan" their faith to the child, till he or she grow up and make it their own. Only in the case of infant baptism does the Church allow faith to be passed on from one person to another.

Thus the Church teaches that in infant baptism, parents who have given their children physical life, are now able to give them the gift of eternal life, through their faith and through the power of the Sacrament of Baptism. To deny them this gift of God would be a disservice.

Radical Change by Sr. Caritas

Each of us has very many different experiences in our lives. At different points in our lives we meet situations or people whose influence or experiences radically change our lives. It may be a teacher in a class we were in. It may be the person we met whom we fall in love with and marry and our lives are changed in ways we never imagined. Sometimes we make decisions that eventually lead to a radical difference in our situation or places we will live. We don't know when these will happen. We may think the decision is not very significant but looking back in our lives we realize it was a decisive turning point.

Our Gospel today is the story in John's Gospel which relates some radical changes in the lives of Jesus and the first apostles. John the Evangelist is one of the apostles called in the story. One of the changes in Jesus' life is He has left His mother, Mary. He is starting His ministerial life. It is radically different for Him. We are told it is the time when John the Baptist, Jesus' cousin, has been arrested. That is another difference for Jesus. He is walking along the shore and He sees two men, whom perhaps he has met with John. They are using their nets to fish. Simon and His brother Andrew listen to Jesus' call, "Come follow me and I will make you fishers of men." They follow him leaving everything behind. They are starting on the journey which will radically change them. Further down the shore, Jesus meets James and John who are with their father, mending the nets. Jesus calls them "follow me" and they follow too and their lives are never the same.

We are like the apostles in the Gospel. We have been called. Through Baptism, we are called to follow Jesus. Jesus walked the road following the will of His Father. If we live our faith, we are walking a road of radical change. It is the challenge we are called to live out. We meet Jesus and this meeting makes us very different. We are called to live this radical life. Will you walk the life of faith? What will you do for love?
